Renehan's Speech On Capitol

I was amazed vesterday when there was received by the House and read veta message No. 2, concerning House IUI No. 24 oppointing and namin-the commissioner of Public Lands custodian of the Capitol Building and pds and the Executive Massion and Grounds. The language to me, when dered in the light of the bill itself, can justly be termed and character ther or intemperate, if based upon a just and true conception and apprehe alon of the meaning and significance of the bill limit. In any event, as read the bill which was rejected by the objections of the Geverner, I cannot for the life of me understand in what way he arrived at the concession that the personal element or equation enters into the introduction of this bill and Now, Mr. Speaker, the Governor has brought into the consideration of and deliberation upon this matter the personal element. What are the facts? The Governor admits in his message that usually it is the case that the control of the Executive Mansion and grounds is in the which arises from that revelation and that statement by saying that the Go ernor generally has the appointment of that Costodian Committee, just as I seeks to retain it in the present instance, in the blea that he can remove, a like whim, or caprice or will, those who happen to be the instanbents of the Custodian Committee. which I offered which made him the sole and supreme authority in central of that Mansion, free from interference from the Capitel Committee or Custodian, or any servant or employ of him. "Provided, fur hur," says the law of 1808, page 389, "That the Capitel Consolitee, in addition to their other duties, shall have full charge and custody of the building known as the 'Governor's Mansion,' and the grounds surrounding and belonging to the same, and hereafter, said Governor's Mansion and grounds shall be considered a part of the Capitel Building and Grounds."

Mr. Speaker, I desire to read from a section of the proposed law to show you how it would be if that law passed, and I want to strip myself of any possible imputation that I had a personal objust, I want to strip the minds of those who are willing to see the right and to do the right, to be just to their fellowmen, in their private as well as their political affairs and duties, of all prejudice, predisposition or misunderstanding; I want to convince them of the rectifude of my purpose when I sought to dedicate this Mansion Io the use of the Governor forever, and to give them complete fredom within their use of the Governor forever, and to give them complete fredom within their residential walls. Ifave I microeded? Is the interestinal attack made upon the motives of the introducer of this bill, as that attack is set forth in the veto message, justified? I can say no confidently, and I trust that men who are from from political passion and bins will see the facts as I see them, and as the facts themselves shine forth. "Provided, further (This is the bill proposed, that is said to inject the personal element) that in care, control, custody and management of the Executive Manajon hereby given to said Custodyan, no interference with or intrusion upon the Governor's occupancy, control and suvernment of the said Manalon, as his place or official abode and residence, shall be done or permitted by the said Custodian, and the said Manalon is hereby set apart and dedicated as the place of official abode and residence of the Governors of this State, and subject to their sole authority."

Can there be in the minds of intelligent men any dispute of the meaning of those words, and when that Innguise is along its comparison with the

of those words, and when that language is placed in comparison with the anguage of the law as it exists at the present time, I ask is the Governor's necessare just to me, and the answer must be no.

Therefore, there remains but one question which could have actuated the Executive in the veto message, when no brought in the language of which I complain; is it a cloak to the real underlying fact that this bill, if it passed, would deprive his apointees of the patronage of the apointment of six or seven or eight employees? If so, the mind of the Governor has been warped from the real fact, and that which is interposed, the personal element.

Mr. Speaker, one word more and I conclude, at the meeting of the caucus this morning. I suggested that this measure do not come before the House for consideration except as to the limited extent to which I propose to speak, and that to my mind since the Governor had seen in to make n out of this measure, no attempt to pass the bill over his veto should made, and no attempt has been made to do so, I demanded, however, and orded the right to speak upon the question of personal privilege to explain the situation of this bill as it is in fact and in the light of the has
